Course Description: This week will address the changes to the AP test as well as content and pedagogy to best address these changes. We will also focus on the criteria needed for the syllabus audit. Please bring your textbook so you can start creating your syllabus. Teachers will receive instruction on teaching essay writing and document analysis as well as the skills needed for the new multiple choice test. Teachers will receive numerous resources; please bring a 16 gig flash drive or a laptop and your favorite United States History lesson plan to share.

Christine Bond currently teaches Advanced Placement (AP) United States history and AP world history at Edmond Memorial High School in Edmond, Oklahoma. She has been a College Board consultant since 2003; she has been a reader for the AP U.S. History exam and has been a reader for the AP World History exam since 2011. She completed her masters degree in 2002 and her National Board Certification in 2008. She is the co-author or the REA AP U.S. History test prep book for the re-designed AP exam and is a contributing author of the AP World History exam questions for the AP test prep website, learnerator.com.